Comtech Networks and Medical domain registrar MaxMD announce partnership – providing access to the domain “.md”.

Long Island, October 14, 2005

Long island, New York based medical solutions provider Comtech Networks proudly announced today that it is entering a partnership with MaxMD, in order to provide domain and e-mail services for the exciting new domain ending “.md”.

With full domain registering and e-mail capabilities, Comtech is adding another complimenting product to its line-up of customer-focused tools and services, always concentrated on the question: “What are the needs of a medical professional?”

Physicians and healthcare providers and other medical professionals can now enjoy exclusivity and recognition to their email addresses and websites. The power of the .md network will continue to increase as membership grows. Online healthcare communications and compliance are still in their infancy; the partnership between MaxMD and Comtech Networks supports their common goal: to be active participants in leading innovations to create a global medical member community that is synonymous with security and reliability.

The top-level domain “.md” became available in 2003, when the small European country Moldova (MD) entered an agreement with the internet administrator ICANN. MaxMD is now globally providing access to this TLD.
